

comparison of experimental length distributions to distribution obtained from the generated sequences by previous computation of length distributions for each number of placed elements in the sequence

